In 300-500 words, use dance as a lens to explain how inequalities in US power dynamics are produced and sustained by ideas about race and ethnicity. Your essay must be about a topic covered between the beginning of the semester and now and should use:

- A topic sentence (What are you about to tell us?)
- Primary Evidence: movement description – What are they doing?
- Analysis of primary evidence: movement analysis – What is the movement doing? What effect does it have?
- Social, Historical, and/or Political context – What is going on in the world? Why does this relate to the movement or what does the movement mean within the larger context?
- Secondary Evidence: quoted or paraphrased material from our readings that you cite in MLA format in the text and in a Works Cited section at the end of your essay.
- Analysis of cited material – in your own words, how does the cited material relate to your primary evidence and/or support your argument?
- A concluding sentence (your argument).
