

Announcement and Call for Papers

Kierkegaard Studies Yearbook and Monograph Series

It is our pleasure to announce that the Kierkegaard Studies Yearbook and Monograph Series will now be continuing publication with a new editorial staff and a somewhat revised profile. Both series will continue to be published by De Gruyter, and both will continue to be official publications of the Søren Kierkegaard Research Centre. Both series will be available in book and electronic form.

Starting from 2011 the coeditors of the series will be Heiko Schulz (Johann Wolfgang Goethe Universität, Frankfurt am Main), Jon Stewart (Søren Kierkegaard Research Centre) and Karl Verstrynge (Vrije Universiteit Brussels). The editorial secretary will be Peter Šajda (Slovak Academy of Sciences). The editors will be assisted by an international advisory board consisting of the following members: Lee Barrett (Lancaster Theological Seminary), István Czákó (Pázmány Péter Catholic University), Joakim Garff (Søren Kierkegaard Research Centre), Darío González (University of Copenhagen), Markus Kleinert (Universität Erfurt), Darya Loungina (Moscow State University), Gerhard Schreiber (Johann Wolfgang Goethe Universität, Frankfurt am Main), Pia Søltoft (Søren Kierkegaard Research Centre), Patrick Stokes (University of Hertfordshire), Johan Taels (University of Antwerp), and Michael Tilley (Georgetown College).

The goal of these series is to advance Kierkegaard studies by encouraging top-level scholarship in the field. Moreover, the editorial and advisory boards are deeply committed to creating a genuinely international forum for publication which integrates the many different traditions of Kierkegaard studies and brings them into a constructive and fruitful dialogue. To this end both series will publish works in English, French and German. We wish to extend a special invitation to the Francophone Kierkegaard community to submit articles and monographs to these series since we are particularly keen to come into dialogue with this rich tradition of Kierkegaard studies.

With regard to the change in profile, the Kierkegaard Studies Yearbook will from now on be an open submission journal. Potential authors should consult the homepage and carefully follow the guidelines for submissions (see the "Guidelines for Authors" at the bottom of the page:

<http://www.degruyter.de/cont/fb/th/thMbwEn.cfm?rc=16032>

All submissions should be sent to the editorial secretary Peter Šajda at the following e-mail address: kierkegaardstudiesyearbook@yahoo.com. All submissions will be blindly refereed by established scholars in the field. Only the very best papers will be accepted for publication. Potential authors should be prepared to make changes to their texts based on the comments received by the referees.

Traditionally the material for the Kierkegaard Studies Yearbook has been taken from the lectures given at the Søren Kierkegaard Research Centre's annual Research Seminar, held each year in August. This had the advantage of, among other things, giving each issue a clear thematic unity. We wish to continue this practice of using the Research Seminar as a source of articles, but with the qualification that the papers must also be submitted for blind review (just like the other submissions).

The deadline for submissions for the 2011 issue of the Kierkegaard Studies Yearbook is March 30, 2011. (Please make sure that your submission is in conformity with the guidelines since if it is not, this will negatively effect the referee's assessment of your paper.)