WHAT TO EXPECT
St. Olaf Study Travel
Norway: Highlights of Oslo and Bergen

Europe is built to be explored on foot. Be prepared for lots of walking! We will move around in each city primarily on foot and with public transportation. You will be responsible for your luggage going into and out of airports, so please be sure you can handle what you pack.

Accommodations will be in centrally-located, comfortable, tourist-class hotels with English speaking staff. Hotel rooms outside the U.S. are typically smaller than the average American hotel room.

To fully partake in this Study Travel program, you should be able to walk up to five miles per day over possibly uneven terrain, climb stairs that may not have handrails, keep pace with an active group of travelers, deal with the emotional highs and lows that can occur when experiencing a different culture, and be a considerate member of the group (prompt, courteous and flexible).

Average highs in early June are around 66ºF, with lows around 50. You will need light layers that can be added or removed as needed. Rainfall averages a couple of inches in June, so a light raincoat or small umbrella may come in handy.
