

INDIGENOUS PERSISTENCE, RESISTANCE, AND INNOVATION IN THE STATE OF MINNESOTA

Dr. Brenna Greenfield '06

Medical School, University of Minnesota-Duluth

Thursday, March 9
3:45 PM | RNS 150

Dr. Greenfield will provide a brief overview of Indigenous communities in Minnesota and the ways in which their freedom has been restricted by US governmental policies. She will discuss the general history of addiction treatment and access to care in Minnesota, and the rise of opioid use. She will provide examples of Indigenous innovation to support community members using drugs. Finally, she will review how, through research, the Aanji'bide (Changing our Paths) collective has moved from a linear opioid use disorder Cascade of Care model to the Aanji'bide holistic and circular model of opioid recovery and change.
